

&then

- “Who are you wearing?” “Who is the artist?” While some take pride in being able to answer these questions with well-established names, there are those who delight in being able to answer with someone that nobody has heard of.
- This constant search for new talent & the next big thing is what inspired &then, a women’s clothing boutique within an art gallery. All of the artwork featured would be from local Portland artists, and the clothing would be from local designers and lesser known labels from around the country.
